

Réseau-1 Québec's Annual Day: June 14, 2019

Vision for a living laboratory: a patient-oriented practice-based research platform

Objectives:

- Present the vision of a patient-oriented practice-based research platform in Quebec, devised jointly by Réseau-1 Québec (R1Q), the four practice-based research networks (PBRNs) it federates, and the Quebec SPOR-SUPPORT Unit.
- Highlight primary care research taking place in Quebec, particularly in PBRN clinics.
- Enhance participants' ability to understand the challenges and opportunities associated with large-scale patient-oriented research projects.
- Promote networking among R1Q members, sharing new ideas and learning from others' experiences.

Pre-conference activity: June 13, 1:00 p.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Access to health data: differing views

A complementary event to R1Q's Annual Day, this activity is organized by the Quebec SPOR-SUPPORT Unit's Patient and Public Partnership Research Strategy platform. Prior to this June 13th activity, two online data access training sessions will be offered, one in April and one in May. The goal of the activity will be to establish priorities regarding access to health data, from the point of view of health professionals, researchers, patient-partners and citizens. Please note that space is limited and that the event will take place in French.
